Ben Larson is a trial attorney at Ireland Stapleton Pryor & Pascoe. Larson is a member of the firm's litigation group, focusing on commercial litigation matters. He counsels clients on a variety of business issues, including antitrust, business dissolution, breach of contract, construction defect, product defect, employment law, intellectual property, business professional liability and securities claims. Mr. Larson has a wealth of trial experience, including a recent victory for an international manufacturer on a product defect case. He also enjoys a robust appellate practice, having played an integral role in a recent victory affirming a trial court order on an issue of first impression.

In addition to his litigation work, Mr. Larson works with startup companies on formation matters, and helps them avoid litigation from potential internal and external disputes. In whatever he is doing, Mr. Larson prides himself on providing sophisticated legal representation to his clients.

Mr. Larson joined Ireland Stapleton after graduating with highest honors from the University of Denver, Sturm College of Law. Prior to law school, Mr. Larson worked in banking and spent two years teaching English in Japan.
