

Alternative Energy

In addition to traditional energy clients, the attorneys at Ireland Stapleton also represent companies developing alternative energy sources. Our experience in this area of law provides value to those just starting out in the renewable energy field, as well as those who have pioneered the industry. We are well positioned to assist our clients with project finance or other debt or equity transactions to fund their business needs. We also work with our clients to maximize federal and state funding for their renewable energy projects through the recent federal stimulus plan.