

Commercial and Civil Litigation

A significant part of our practice is litigation. Many of our attorneys are involved in all aspects of litigation, including civil trials and appeals, practicing before state and federal courts, administrative courts and state and federal regulatory agencies. Ireland Stapleton represents international, national, regional and local organizations, as well as individuals, in commercial and private disputes, alternative dispute resolution and litigation-avoidance strategies. With each litigation matter, our goal is to achieve favorable and cost-effective results by understanding our clients' business and financial objectives, efficiently utilizing our staff and technology and aggressively advocating our clients' interests.

Our litigation attorneys have significant experience representing clients in virtually all areas of commercial and private litigation, including:
