Mike joined Ireland Stapleton as an Associate in March 2024. He focuses his practice on complex corporate transactions and the representation of private companies in all stages of their life cycle. Mike represents venture capital funds, private equity firms, other institutional investors and companies in connection with a wide variety of matters, including mergers and acquisitions, private placements, minority investments, venture capital financings and corporate governance matters. He also advises start-up and growth-stage companies across a wide variety of industries, including technology, education, medical devices, life sciences, clean energy, agriculture, and manufacturing.

Prior to moving to Denver and joining Ireland Stapleton, Mike practiced at global law firms Morrison Foerster and Kirkland and Ellis. During his time there, he represented venture capital and private equity funds and served as outside counsel for a variety of early-stage companies.

Before entering legal practice, Mike spent a decade in Washington, D.C., as a government affairs professional for trade associations and public companies in the technology and healthcare industries.
